Simon & Schuster

The world of book publishing is not as elusive as it may seem; though it is a small industry, it is one that's ever-changing and inclusive, looking to reach a vast audience with its diversity of storytelling. Book publishing is also not an industry that's widely spoken about when discussing career options while in school but it is however a wonderful, creative, and passion-fueled business that's as eager to tell you all about it as much as you may be eager to learn.

Simon & Schuster will be offering a sneak peek behind the scenes this summer by offering a select group a chance to participate in a week-long virtual careers in book publishing lecture series FOR FREE. To be eligible for this program, you must be either a 2020 or 2021 college/university graduate from either an undergraduate or graduate program.

This program will offer a glimpse into every aspect of the business through the voices and stories of our own employees in a wide assortment of departments. What does it really mean to be an Editor? How does a book get acquired? What's involved in creating a marketing plan? What goes on in subsidiary rights? What do the sales people do? These are just some of the questions we'll answer as we take you virtually inside our building and the many departments that work on getting that next bestseller on the bookshelf and into your hands.

To be considered for the program, please submit a resume along with a cover letter explaining why this program would be of interest to you. Please note that you must be either a 2020 or 2021 graduate to be eligible. Applications should be submitted through our Simon & Schuster career site at About.SimonandSchuster.biz/Careers-at-Simon-Schuster.
